January Update

In addition to our regular AKSOM venues in Anchorage, Kenai and Fairbanks, we also taught at Wasilla, Tok and Juneau.

Masters Commission started up again in Wasilla on a new schedule that will allow them to minister during the summer throughout Alaska. Their first classes also started in January and they were eager for classes to begin again. It's extremely gratifying when you have students with the desire to learn more about our Lord.

Susan and I traveled to Tok where I taught Ephesians to our AKSOM students in what was the coldest venue at -29°. We finished the month by traveling to Juneau where we taught four additional classes.

to Ketchikan, where Ketchikan First Assembly of God hosted us for Personal Evangelism. We had more than 50 students online to take part in the classes offered in addition to those at the live venues. The students were able to communicate via of the "chat room" function to participate in the class and ask questions. This proved to be so successful that we will simulcast again in May. The feedback was extremely positive.

Emmonak & Alakanuk

In the second week of February I had the opportunity to travel to Emmonak and was hosted by Austin and Jennifer Jones in Western Alaska located on the Yukon River. We had students attending class from both Emmonak and Alakanuk

While attending class on Saturday, Pastor Marvin Paul asked me to preach Sunday morning at Alakanuk. Wow, what an adventure, the temps were running in the -30 range without wind chill and to get to Alakanuk we had to travel the 8 or so miles via snow mobile on the Yukon River.

One of the men from the church allowed me to use his and we traveled in "caravan fashion" there and back again for the evening service at Emmonak. God moved in both services and several received salvation in the evening service.

Dillingham

The last weekend of the month I traveled to Dillingham in southwestern Alaska where Pastors Debbie and David Milligan hosted me for the weekend. We held the AKSOM class on Saturday, and on Sunday I ministered during the morning worship.

David shared the beautiful countryside with me via of snow mobile after class on Saturday. The scenery was breathtaking.

Simulcast Venue a Huge Success

Our first simulcast venue was held on February 5 at two separate locations; Anchorage and Ketchikan in Southeast Alaska. Muldoon Community Assembly hosted Eschatology and Apologetics classes while Susan and I traveled
